

Why should one learn Vedas

Vedas have no concept of disbelievers : Vedas have no punishment for blasphemy, no death sentence, no divine wrath, no threat for rejecting Vedas fully or partially unlike many religious cults.

Vedas encourage Apostasy: Unlike later era cults where punishment for apostasy (rejecting prevailing faith privately or publicly) is death.

The societies where apostasy is punished are among the most uncivilized terror-prone hells on earth. Entire Europe was in lawless darkness till Pope held dominance. One clearly knows what is the situation in Africa, Middle East etc..

Why should one learn Vedas

Vedas urge us to live in harmony with nature.

The concept of Vedas is to give as much back to world as much you take it.

By our mere existence, we pollute the world. Hence it becomes a supreme duty to take proactive efforts for protecting the environment.

Vedas are the first and most vocal advocates of green-technology and “Save Environment” mission.

Why should one learn Vedas

Vedas ask us to be respectful to others.

So even if we differ from others in views, Vedas urge us to strive for unity and brotherhood.

Vedas say that in world there would always be a variety of languages, customs, social norms, ideologies and cultures. But we should seek unity despite that on basis of the divinity that powers all living beings.

Many cults claim to have monopoly over truth and have punishments for those who refuse to believe in these claims of truth.

Why should one learn Vedas

Vedas consider women have same rights as men have:

There can be no difference in marital rights of man and woman as per Vedas.

They urge us to see a mother in all women and respect them.

Vedas are against polygamy: One man – one woman is the way of Vedas. Polygamy is a social evil that must be completely eliminated.

There are no divine prohibitions on career paths of women.

Women in Vedas need not damage their bodies due to lack of Vitamin D caused by staying indoors and covering themselves totally in curtains.

Why should one learn Vedas

Vedas teach “Loyalty towards your motherland”:
The concept of Matr̥ bhūmi (Motherland).

Why should one learn Vedas

Vedas demand all humans to have equal social, political, spiritual, religious and educational rights irrespective of gender, birth, caste, region or religion.

Why should one learn Vedas

One cannot be a Christian if she refuses to believe in Jesus.
One cannot be a Muslim if she refuses to believe in Prophets.
In fact irrespective of my good deeds, I would be forever punished by God for my refusal to believe. Even in this world, I may be beheaded for blasphemy.

The only option for a rational spiritual person is Vedas – no threats, no punishments, no mandatory beliefs checklist. Only universalism and freedom to have a customized philosophy of life.

Why should one learn Vedas

There is no conversion agenda in Vedas:

All Christian missionaries indulge in social activities with this open agenda to make all people of this planet Christians.

A Muslim cannot get into Heaven until he has converted other people in Islam.

These agents of these medieval religions want to divide world in believers and non-believers and want to reduce population of non-believers – through deceit, war, terror or bribe.

And both say that unless you believe in their respective faith alone, you will burn in Hell.

Why should one learn Vedas

There is no conversion agenda in Vedas:

Vedas simply have one agenda for all humans - “Be Humans” (Manur bhava).

There is no compulsory specific verse to agree to, when one resolves to follow Vedas. You just need to resolve to be honest and humane.

Why should one learn Vedas

Recitation of Vedic mantras can bring psychological and physiological healing. They are extremely powerful rejuvenation pills.

Why should one learn Vedas

Nothing except Vedas are so timeless, region-less, religion-less and yet purpose oriented. One can continue the list.

The essence is that the only foundation for a universal religion for modern human civilization lies in Vedas – the original source.

Its is the only recipe we have to unite the world.

Lets bring message of Vedas to every doorstep. Lets bring Vedas to every human.

Lets get Ahead to Vedas!

The Third Principle

Veda

The scripture of truth

It is this Veda, which, the Arya Samaj lays down, is the repository of all truth, and which, therefore, it is the primary duty of all Aryas to study and teach, to recite and hear being read.
